

By the King.

A Proclamation forbidding any resort to His Maiesties Court, for cure of the Kings-Euill, vntill Easter next.

Is Maiestie hauing in September last declared his Royall pleasure touching the time he had designed for cure of such his Subjects as were afflicted with the disease called the Kings-Euill, which by his Proclamation, he had prescribed to haue done at the feast of the birth of our Lord God now next comming: And although his Maiestie in his gracious disposition is as ready, and willing, as any of his predecessours at all times to relieue the distresses, and necessities of his Subjects: Yet now hauing taken into his Royall consideration, the present generall dispersion and ouerspreading of the Small-Pox throughout all parts of this Kingdome, and of the danger that may ensue to his Maiesties person, and house-hold, by the accesse, and confluence of those people to his Court for cure; Is therefore pleased to put off that worke to a further time: And doth therefore hereby straitly charge, and command, that no person, or persons whatsoever, who hath the disease of the Kings-Euill, doe presume to repaire to his Maiesties Court, for help, vntill the feast of Easter next, vpon paine of his Maiesties high displeasure, his Maiesties said late Proclamation, or any signification of his pleasure thereby, to the contrary hereof notwithstanding. And to the end that all his louing Subjects may the better take knowledge of this his royall command. his pleasure is, that this his Proclamation be forthwith published and affixed, in fit and open places, in every Market-Towne of this his Realme.
